SPASSKY (WHITE)

The board at the end of the 17th game, a draw.

Schmidt then showed the scores sheet to Spassky, who remained seated as Fischer left the stage. It appears as if Spassky had not realized the repetition. Schmidt went through the moves with him, and Spassky rose, looking tired.

It is possible that the champion, trying to build up extra time by his clock, had accidentally drifted into a triple repetition of the position. He had less than half an hour to make 13 moves, and chess players under time pressure often make harmless moves to catch up on the required number of moves that must be completed for each hour of the contest.

To some people here it seems inconceivable that Spassky would

Suslov Cites Congressional 'Distortions' of Treaty

Kremlin Warns on SALT Pact Interpretations

By Hedrick Smith
MOSCOW, Aug. 23 (UPI)—The Kremlin warned publicly today against attempts by Washington to put new interpretations on the strategic arms agreements signed here in May.

Mikhail Suslov, a ranking member of the ruling Politburo, endorsed formal ratification of the treaty limiting antiballistic defenses but, taking note of attempts in Congress to attach interpretations to the interim agreement on offensive weapons, he warned: "Everyone must understand that the Soviet Union, proceeding from its own security interests, will attentively watch attempts of certain forces in the United States to distort the spirit and letter of the treaty and interim agreement, and will take into consideration in its policy all changes which may appear in the position of the American side."

The Nixon administration first gave—and then backed away from—an endorsement of an attempt by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D., Wash., to attach the terms of a congressional understanding of the interim agreement to a resolution approving it.

Because of this maneuver, approval of the agreement is stalled in the Senate, though the House approved it overwhelmingly last Friday without qualification. Sen. Jackson's approach, prompted by the fact that the agreement would allow certain numerical advantages to the Soviet Union, would require that any future agreement controlling offensive weapons would be based on the principle of equality of forces.

In his speech to a joint meeting of the foreign affairs commissions of the two houses of the Supreme Soviet, Mr. Suslov did not say specifically that this was unacceptable, although his comments implied that reinterpretations after the signing could pose problems in the future.

"The effectiveness and viability of any agreement depends first of all on the unwavering fulfillment by the sides of the commitments they assumed," he declared. "This is especially important in the case of agreements which are the first major step in the direction of limiting strategic arms. The fulfillment by the sides of the obligations under the treaty and interim agreement, their observance of the principle of equal security of the sides, and impermissibility of unilateral military advantages will be the decisive factor for successful progress in further strategic arms limitation talks."

No Serious Alarm
Heretofore, the Kremlin has patiently followed American congressional maneuvering without comment. Nor did Mr. Suslov's comments imply any serious alarm on Moscow's part, for he noted the general approval of the measures in American political circles.

Other portions of his speech, defending the importance of the agreements, seemed obliquely directed at North Vietnamese complaints that Moscow and Peking were making compromises with Washington.

Soviet sources as well as Western diplomats have reported evidence that Hanoi objected strenuously to the Nixon visit in May despite mining of Haiphong harbor and heavy American air raids against the North.

Without referring to Hanoi, Mr. Suslov indicated that the Kremlin was underlined in its policy line. The treaty and interim agreement, he stated, met with great satisfaction in the countries of the Socialist alliance. This terminology usually means East European Communist states rather than the whole Communist camp, including Hanoi.

Both he and Gen. Viktor G. Kulikov, Soviet chief of staff, asserted that the agreements met not only the interests of the Soviet and American peoples but the interests of all other peoples, the interests of the general relaxation of international tensions, as an important new step in the struggle for peace and security.

Porter and Thuy To Skip Today's Peace Negotiation

PARIS, Aug. 23 (AP)—The chief U.S. and North Vietnamese delegates will skip tomorrow's 15th session of the Vietnam peace talks. Both will be represented by their deputies.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter will be away "on a brief holiday in Europe," an American spokesman said.

Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief delegate, has been told by physicians to rest a bit, a North Vietnamese spokesman said. Mr. Thuy was reported to be visiting the region around Grenoble, France.

The Viet Cong's chief delegate, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, will attend the meeting, a spokesman said. Ambassador Phan Dan Lam, head of the South Vietnamese delegation, is also expected to participate.

At last week's regular plenary session, the North Vietnamese spokesman denied that private talks with U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger had made progress toward peace.

The delegations today were waiting to hear what President Nixon would say about the war in his nomination-acceptance speech at the Republican convention in Miami Beach.

Embezzle Suspect Held

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Fred D. Hubbard, a former Chicago alderman sought for more than a year on charges of embezzling $100,000 in federal poverty funds, was arrested in California yesterday, the FBI announced here.

Mr. Hubbard, missing since May, 1971, was picked up near Los Angeles, a spokesman said. He was indicted by a federal grand jury in Chicago on Aug. 11, 1971, on charges of embezzling $100,715 from the Chicago Plan, a program under the Economic Opportunity Act.

Burden on Jewish Emigrants

Israel Asks World Protest Of Soviet 'Diploma Tax'

JERUSALEM, Aug. 23 (UPI)—Premier Golda Meir urged all "freedom lovers" today to join Israel in a "sacred battle" against the diploma tax being imposed on educated Jews who want to leave the Soviet Union.

In a 20-minute speech to a special session of the Knesset, Mrs. Meir said the Soviet Union was charging from 4,000 rubles ($4,800) to 20,000 rubles ($24,000) for college-educated Jews to come to Israel, depending on their diplomas.

"I call on all freedom lovers and haters of slavery to raise their voices in protest and bring the ransom to an end," Mrs. Meir said. "We are fighting a sacred battle because it is a just battle for our people."

She said that: "We also have reports that the tax may be applied to high school and trade school graduates."

Knesset Resolution

Following her speech, the Knesset unanimously resolved to call on governments, parliaments, religious leaders, scientists and intellectuals the world over to lobby against what it described as "this insult to humanity."

"Let our people immigrate without ransom, without bias, without a price on them, and without any discrimination whatsoever," Mrs. Meir said. "We're going to seek all possible support to rescind the decree."

"The tax is only part of an anti-Jewish policy of the Soviets aimed at deterring immigration by putting obstacles in the path of advanced education and repressing the Jewish renaissance," she said.

"Some countries still have slave trade, where strength fetches the highest price," Mrs. Meir said. "In Russia, the best price is commanded by intellectual attainment."

Italy Said to Be Tightening Control of Arab Embassies

ROME, Aug. 23 (UPI)—Police informants said today that controls over the embassies of Arab states here had been tightened during the last few days on suspicion that some of them were mixed up in illegal activities.

However, the Foreign Ministry disavowed a published report that Italy had requested the recall of two Arab diplomats.

La Stampa, of Turin, said today that the government had declared the two diplomats, who were not identified, to be undesirable on the ground that they seemed implicated in the bombing of an Israeli airliner a week ago.

"That's the first thing we have heard about it," a Foreign Ministry spokesman remarked.

Diplomatic Immunity

The generally well-informed Turin newspaper said that counterintelligence services were investigating suspected members of a terrorist organization who, under the cover of diplomatic immunity, have for many months been operating in Italy with their own centers and with trained agents in coordination with Arab guerrilla groups.

Italian officials were reluctant to comment for the record on these assertions. Police sources who requested anonymity hinted that surveillance over Arab diplomatic, trade and cultural missions here had indeed been sharply stepped up.

Suspicious that extremist Arab underground groups were operating a logistics base in Rome, they were reported to have in Israel since three Japanese gunmen shot up Lydda Airport, near Tel Aviv, last May 30. The three had boarded a French airliner in Rome to fly to Israel.

Last week's unsuccessful plot to blow up an Israel-bound plane of El Al, the Israeli airline, shortly after takeoff from Rome, strengthened the theory of a secret guerrilla center here.

Probes into the alleged Arab terrorist underground here are surrounded by extreme discretion because Italy does not want to endanger its generally good relations with Arab countries. The more delicate aspects of the investigations—such as checks on Arab diplomats—are believed to be handled by military security teams.

Attempted Massacre

Two young Arabs are in prison here, charged with "attempted massacre" by smuggling an explosive device onto the El Al airliner. The police allege that the two men had given the small time-bomb, fitted into a tape cassette player, to two 18-year-old British girls who were due to fly to Israel after staying with them in their Rome apartment.

An explosion occurred in the baggage compartment of the El Al plane 10 minutes after takeoff, but none of the 140 passengers and eight crew members was seriously hurt because the baggage section was shielded by steel plating, and because of other safety precautions that El Al had taken.

The two Arab men were identified as Ahmed Zaid, 24, who was found in possession of an Indian passport issued in Baghdad, Iraq, and Mohammed Ali Hasham, 29, carrier of a Jordanian passport. They were arrested in a street off Rome's glittering Via Veneto Saturday.

Investigators now theorize that the two men had been on their way to the embassy of an unnamed Arab country to pick up false passports preliminary to slipping out of Italy. The police stated earlier that the two Arabs, after the action against the El Al airliner, had traveled to Venice in what may have been an unsuccessful attempt to reach Yugoslavia clandestinely and returned to Rome later last week.

Under questioning by investigating magistrates, the two men reportedly are sticking to their initial story that they had had no idea of the bomb concealed in the cassette player.

Sources close to the investigation say that the police are looking for a third Arab, who is known to have been in Rome earlier this month and is suspected of having headed the group.

Confident Republicans Back Nixon-Agnew Team

But Rep. McCloskey won one of New Mexico's 14 votes in the presidential primary there, and state chairman Manuel Lujan said it was his duty by law to cast that dissenting ballot.

After his nomination, Mr. Nixon drove from his Key Biscayne retreat to nearby Miami

Marine Stadium, where about 8,000 supporters crowded a young voters rally.

Led by entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., they joined in the rock beat of a new campaign song, "Nixon Now More Than Ever," as the President appeared.

"I believe that it is particularly appropriate that the first appearance of the President of the United States after his nomination be made before first voters, as you are," he said.

He noted Democratic claims to the support of most young people and disputed them.

"I don't think the youth vote is in anybody's pocket. I don't think it ever will be," he said.

massive bureaucracy" versus reverting "to the discredited paternalism of the '60s," and the free-enterprise system versus making "the government a preferred employer."

The Vice-President described President Nixon's record and his aim for a second term as designed for "one America" and his programs as for "all Americans." By contrast, he said, "some people seem determined to fasten group labels on people, and in the process to turn American against American."

Those were the chief political thrusts of the Agnew speech. He began it, however, by describing his experience in what he called "the crucible that is the vice-presidency."

The number two job, he said, has "two primary important functions—to serve the President and to learn from the President." If these definitions were accepted, he said, much of the controversy about the vice-presidency could be "quelled."

Part of the job is to contribute candid advice in policy formulation and then, once policies are set by the President, to help "translate them into achievements," he said.

More Confident Man

The Spiro Agnew of this evening was a far more confident man than was the then governor of Maryland when candidate Nixon tapped him for his running mate here in Miami Beach Aug. 8, 1968. Then, he confessed that his name was "not a household word." Today it is.

Then, he said he had been tapped chiefly because of his "knowledge of the problems of the cities, of county and state government." Tonight, he ranged over the whole spectrum of foreign and domestic affairs.

Even before the McGovern nomination here a month ago, Mr. Agnew called the senator "one of the greatest friends ever to be considered a presidential candidate by a major political party." His remarks tonight indicated there will be few, if any, limitations to his anti-McGovern rhetoric this fall.

Four years ago, it was a startling choice for Vice-President that Mr. Nixon made. Tonight, many of the delegates voting again for Spiro T. Agnew felt he was being given a leg up as Mr. Nixon's successor four years hence.

Mr. Agnew himself said on arrival here that he is keeping that "option open." Nothing he said tonight indicated he will do other than exercise that option.

Rep. Paul M. McCloskey, who received the only vote cast against President Nixon at the Republican convention

Rep. McCloskey Double Loser

MIAMI BEACH, Aug. 23 (Reuters)—Rep. Paul McCloskey, the California liberal Republican who challenged President Nixon for the party's presidential nomination before dropping out of the contest last May, said yesterday that the personal price of his campaigning had been too high.

He said in an interview here that it led his wife of 23 years to leave him in June.

"My wife, Karen, up her hands," he said. "She thought the price was too great for our family."

"And it is—it's the greatest price you could pay. If I could get her back, I'd resign from Congress tomorrow."

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller placed before the only named candidate of a President said "has brought a threshold of a new peace."

Furthermore, said G. feller, Mr. Nixon is planning "for a center ahead."

"We need this man this man of accomplishment, man of experience, the courage," he said. "We need of faith in America, the work of a philosophy from G. Republican Sen. James of New York to Hickel, ousted as secretary interior, to Mrs. He wife of the Democratic Milwaukee, seconded dent's nomination."

Harlem Streets Graduates Take Cram Course on Russia

opening three-week trip to Moscow, Leningrad and the Estonian Republic that exposed them to racial feelings in another white-dominated society, and let them witness the propaganda of another establishment and rub shoulders with people who have different kinds of problems. They came out disagreeing about what it meant.

Their trip was an experiment in awakening disadvantaged young Harlem blacks to the world of international affairs and as a catalyst for learning. It was a great success, according to Irving Hamer Jr., the lanky, relaxed young director of the Harlem Street Academy.

"It's kind of remarkable to see their curiosity blossom about Catherine the Great or Alexander or Lenin, because it's hard to teach these kids about Europe from books," Mr. Hamer explained, adjusting his slightly faded Afro shirt. "Normally, black kids in Harlem aren't plugged in to what's going on in the world. They're thinking about their own problems at home. But, look, these kids are paying their own money for books and post-its. We've awakened a genuine interest for them."

"Besides," he said, "we believe it's important for black Americans to understand different systems—that's the number one way to understand the system in which you live and the potential for change in it."

Students from the academy—set up in 1965 largely for school dropouts and now handling mostly referrals from the Board of Education, Department of Correction and various welfare agencies, as well as volunteers who dropped out of regular classroom education—have gone previously to Canada, Mexico or West Africa. But this was their first visit to a Communist country.

Through the Citizens Exchange

Corps, a private, nonprofit organization in New York that promotes American-Soviet people-to-people exchanges, roughly $7,000 was raised from private individuals, Mr. Hamer said, to send seven academy students selected by their peers to the Soviet Union.

It was not a voyage without jolts. Often, the Harlem blacks said, they found Soviet citizens staring at them.

Some of the black students were not certain whether the staring was out of curiosity or prejudice. But John Epps, a black student from Neptune, N.J., with four years of Russian, said the insulting remarks, which he overheard when Russians thought he did not understand, persuaded him that prejudice "is the same here, except they don't have their own black problems because they don't have blacks."

Soviet Scientist Sentenced for Slandering State

MOSCOW, Aug. 23 (UPI)—Jewish biologist Ilya Gleser, labeled a "moral degenerate" by Soviet media, began a three-year sentence at a corrective labor colony today for writing letters which slandered the Soviet Union, the newspaper Moscow Pravda said.

Jewish sources said the letters concerned the problems of Jews in the Soviet Union.

Mr. Gleser, a 40-year-old former scientist at Moscow State University's biological school, was a specialist in brain anatomy, yesterday pleaded guilty in court here to charges of "slandering and spreading slanderous documents undermining the Soviet state system," the newspaper said.

He was arrested in February, shortly after applying to emigrate to Israel.

"Gleser did his best to carry favor with his spiritual mentors from Israel and beatruch, our Socialist society, the same society which educated him, gave him a job and opened the road to the sciences," the newspaper said.

Fischer and Spassky in Draw

play for a draw. He had a slightly stronger position, and at this stage of the match he cannot afford half points. One observer in exhibition hall who was watching the faces of the Soviet delegation in the lobby said that they appeared stunned when the draw was announced. Like many others, they had counted on a long, grueling session while Spassky attempted to make his minimal advantage count.

Another interpretation of the draw by repetition might be that Fischer's first move had not been anticipated by the Russians, who had spent the night analyzing different lines. Spassky may have been primed for a certain line of play and thus might not have wanted to take a chance on something for which he was unprepared.

In addition, Spassky does not seem to have the stamina he had at the beginning of the match, and in a long complicated end game must commit one of the blunders to which he has become increasingly prone.

In the last four games, even though Spassky has not been able to reduce his three-point deficit, he has been playing stronger chess than during Fischer's spurt from the third through the eighth games.

And the Russian has done better than Fischer's three previous opponents. In Spassky's mind when he came here must have been the 6-to-0 beatings that Fischer gave to Mark Taimanov, of the Soviet Union, and Bent Larsen of Denmark, and the 6 1/2-to-2 1/2 trouncing he gave to Tigran Petrosian, of the Soviet Union, from whom Spassky had won the world title.

That kind of one-sided score in the present title match would have been a terrible humiliation for Spassky and the Russians, and it might be one reason for Spassky's careful—many say over-cautious—play.

The Soviet charges of electronic and chemical cheating, made yesterday in a statement by Zim Geller, Spassky's second, are being studied by Schmid and the Icelandic Federation.

Schmid said one or more trained investigators will go through Exhibition Hall as soon as possible to see if anything can be found to substantiate the charges.

The prevalent feeling is that in a day or two the charges will quietly go away, that the Russians were shooting from the hip, just as before the start of the match they had accused Fischer of being helped by computers in New York.

The idea is clear even if the spelling isn't perfect, as Linda and Chip Mobile, Ala., display their personal placard at Republican convention.

Hickel, Fired From Nixon Team, Seeks President's Nomination

MIAMI BEACH, Aug. 23 (AP).—One of the leading contenders for President Nixon's nomination last night was made by Walter Hickel, who was fired from the Nixon cabinet two years ago. "I know it was seriously offered in good faith and that's why I accepted," Mr. Hickel said of being asked to make the bid. "I'm happy to be one of the persons seconding." Hickel, 53, was fired from the Nixon administration in 1970 after he publicly urged the President to listen more to young war dissenters, said he has not talked to Mr. Nixon personally in several months. "As you might recall, I was the last one in and the first one out," Mr. Hickel said in his seconding speech. "I didn't agree with all the actions of the administration and I'm sure they likewise didn't agree with all mine," he said. "The real excitement came this year when we made the great gesture toward China and Russia," Mr. Hickel said, praising the President for his "progressive, enlightened attitude and hopes for peace."

Pretrial Testimony Is Sealed In Watergate Bugging Case

By Jim Mann and Bob Woodward
WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP).—U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey ruled yesterday that the five break-in suspects in the Watergate bugging case must be kept under seal until after the grand jury completes its investigation. The ruling makes it impossible for the sworn statements to be taken of Nixon administration and campaign officials, including former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and campaign finance director Maurice Stans, will be made public until after the Nov. 7 presidential election. Judge Richey said he felt the secrecy was necessary to protect the constitutional rights of persons who are or may later be charged in criminal proceedings involving the June 17 incident at the Watergate Hotel here. "I don't intend to keep the seal for one minute longer than necessary to protect someone's constitutional rights," the judge said. A federal grand jury has been investigating the break-in of Democratic headquarters since shortly after the incident occurred, and it is expected to return indictments soon.

U.S. Won't Act Against Clark And Salinger

No Violations Seen In Talks With Reds

By Sanford J. Ungar
WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (WP).—The Justice Department and State Department yesterday rejected the assertions of prominent Republican senators that former attorney general Ramsey Clark and former presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger had violated the law by conferring with Vietnamese Communist officials in Hanoi and Paris.

Officials of both departments said that no investigation of Mr. Clark and Mr. Salinger was under way and that none is planned. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R., Ariz., told the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach Monday night that Mr. Clark "is so ignorant of the law that he doesn't realize he is violating the Logan Act which prohibits any American citizen, other than the President, from participating in foreign policy."

The same day, Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said at a convention news conference that the Justice Department was already "looking into" whether Mr. Salinger had violated the law during a mission to Paris on behalf of Democratic presidential candidate George S. McGovern.

Dates to 1799
Passed in 1799 and revised several times since, the Logan Act forbids any U.S. citizen from direct or indirect "correspondence or intercourse with any foreign government."

The maximum penalty for violation is three years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

No one has ever been tried under the act, however, and only one person—a Kentucky farmer who published an article in a German magazine in 1893—has ever been formally charged with violating it.

The Justice Department reacted yesterday with some embarrassment to the strong statements by Sen. Goldwater and Sen. Scott.

A spokesman for Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said there was no active interest in the matter in his department. "It's a foreign affairs matter," the spokesman said. "The State Department would have to ask us to do something. If they thought there was a violation, they would contact us."

An official in the legal adviser's office at the State Department, who asked not to be identified, said that no such contact had been made or was contemplated.

Political Questions
"These are not questions that are likely to be decided on legal grounds," he said with a laugh when told of the remarks by Sen. Goldwater and Sen. Scott. "They are political."

It has long been the view of the State Department lawyers, the official added, that the Logan Act is so vague as to be unconstitutional.

Both Mr. Clark and Mr. Salinger have denied any intention to interfere with U.S. foreign policy in their talks with the Communists, but Sen. Goldwater suggested that their actions may delay the end of the war in Vietnam.

THROUGH THE YEARS WITH LBJ—When Lyndon Johnson was President in 1968; in April, 1972, and Tuesday, when he met Democratic nominee George McGovern.

McGovern Defends His Defense Plan

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP).—Sen. George McGovern defended his controversial defense proposals before a polite, subdued American Legion convention today and promised if elected this country would never become a second-rate power. "There were no boos or hisses. It was a very good audience," Sen. McGovern told national Legion commander John Geiger afterward. "I was grateful for that," he said. Sen. McGovern was applauded nine times during the half-hour speech and got a standing ovation of 17 seconds when he was finished. Repeatedly reminding the convention that he had served in World War II as a bomber pilot in Europe, Sen. McGovern devoted most of his speech to a sharp denunciation of the Vietnam war and what he called its demoralizing effect on the armed forces. But the Democratic presidential nominee's strongest words were reserved for a pledge that "No hostile power will succeed in threatening this country if I am President. No foreign power will push us around."

Anti-Busing Law Is Ruled Void for Working Programs

By Philip Hager
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—The Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that the federal "busing moratorium" law does not apply to court-ordered school desegregation programs already in operation.

A three-judge panel of the court yesterday refused a Justice Department request to use the new law to halt a busing program implemented last year in Oxnard, Calif. The court called the law "at best ambiguous," but said neither its language nor legislative history compelled its application in cases such as that at Oxnard. The law "... does not serve to roll back desegregation orders already in effect," the court concluded.

The Justice Department had intervened in the Oxnard case earlier this month, seeking retroactive application of the "moratorium," which went into effect July 1.

Yesterday's ruling was the first major test of the law. The decision applies directly throughout this federal circuit, which includes the nine Western states, but is likely to be taken into account by courts throughout the nation.

The Justice Department is expected to appeal the ruling to the Supreme Court.

The law seeks to postpone the effectiveness of court-ordered busing to achieve racial balance until court appeals are exhausted or until Jan. 1, 1974, whichever comes first.

The Oxnard School District began a busing program last fall at the direction of U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson, who had found "de jure overtones" in district practices leading to racial imbalance. Under the judge's order, about 1,700 white, Mexican-American and black students were being bused to 13 elementary schools. The racial makeup of the district's pupils is 45 percent Mexican-American, 49 percent white, 11 percent black and 2 percent Oriental.

After the new federal law went into effect, the district applied to the Court of Appeals for a stay, in order to stop the busing program. The district was joined by the Justice Department.

David L. Norman, the department's assistant attorney general for civil rights, argued the case personally before the court on Aug. 10.

Attorneys for the Western Center on Law and Poverty in Los Angeles and the Legal Aid Association of Ventura, Calif., representing minority students, opposed the district and the Justice Department, asserting that the new law was unconstitutional and, in any event, not applicable in the Oxnard case.

They held that the law "has no application to the case pending at the time of its effective date in which transportation of students, pursuant to integration plan, is already in operation."

His decision was upheld by an appeals court. Since then the trial has been halted by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas to permit the appeal to the high court.

Lawyer's Questions
In asking the Supreme Court to review the wiretap issue, the attorneys for Mr. Ellsberg and Mr. Russo posed these questions:

- Whether a public adversary hearing is required on a wiretapped conversation.
- Whether the district court's refusal of an adversary hearing was legal.
- Whether a wiretap conducted without warrant as an alleged measure against "foreign intelligence" is lawful, and if so, whether its use in a criminal prosecution is constitutional.

The Supreme Court will open its next session in October. The trial of Mr. Ellsberg and Mr. Russo can be quickly resumed if the court refuses to consider the wiretap issue, but will be further delayed if the court decides to hear the case.

Four UMW Aides Charged With Abetting Perjury

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP).—Four United Mine Workers officials, including two already named in the murder of Joseph A. Yablonski, were charged today with trying to encourage false testimony before a grand jury in connection with the case.

The indictment, returned in Cleveland, was announced by the Justice Department. Among the indicted were Albert E. Pass, secretary-treasurer of the UMW's District 19 and a member of the union's International Executive Board, and William Prater, 53, a field representative for District 19, which covers parts of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Mr. Pass and Mr. Prater are both being held in a Pittsburgh jail on various charges resulting from the deaths of Mr. Yablonski, his wife and daughter, whose bodies were found in their western Pennsylvania home Jan. 5, 1970.

In addition, the indictment added two more names to the six already charged in connection with the shooting of Mr. Yablonski, charged by UMW president W. A. (Tony) Boyle in the union's presidential election Dec. 19, 1969. They are Chester Philpot, 50, of Straight Creek, Ky., and Ernest Salts, 60, of Grimsley, Tenn., both District 19 field representatives.

Armed Man Held By Miami Police

MIAMI, Aug. 23 (AP).—A young man who had a 22-caliber rifle in his car posed as a Secret Service agent yesterday and tried to gain entry to the hall where the Republicans are holding their convention, police said. Police said that Michael Harry Lux, 22, of Miami Beach, was stopped when he tried to get into the Convention Hall compound. Mr. Lux was arrested about 1 a.m., police said, several hours after the last of the Republican delegates to the GOP convention had left the area. He has been charged with impersonating an officer.

Minnesota Flood Damage

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 23 (AP).—Damage from heavy rains and flooding Sunday in this Lake Superior port city and the surrounding area is expected to reach $14 million, a federal official said yesterday, adding that he believes there is a good chance the section will qualify as a federal disaster area.

GOP Aide Denies Violations
WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP).—A high Republican official denied yesterday published reports that the Committee for the Re-election of the President violated campaign finance laws in handling nearly $600,000.

Paul E. Barrett, the treasurer of the finance committee of President Nixon's re-election committee, made the statement yesterday about the report published in The Washington Post that the Government Accounting Office had found violations in the handling of the funds. He said all contributions and expenditures had been reported.

The Post story said "several reliable sources" reported irregularities found by the GAO included $300,000 in unreported contributions, $300,000 in unreported expenditures, a $100,000 campaign security fund, some errors in reporting a $50,000 itemization, and an undisclosed amount of loose cash at the committee.

Argentine Regime Is Assailed In Slayings of 15 Prisoners

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 23 (AP).—An uproar of criticism from demonstrating students and the powerful Peronist party boiled up against Argentina's military government today over the killings of 15 guerrilla prisoners accused of staging their second jailbreak in a week.

The supreme council of the Peronistas, Argentina's largest political party, branded the killings yesterday "a new violation of human rights" and said it would send its own investigators to the scene at the Trelew marine base prison, 700 miles south-west of Buenos Aires.

The Peronist party also said it was sending doctors to care for four wounded survivors and lawyers "to assist other persons in the area deprived of their liberty."

The uproar from the Peronists could jeopardize plans for national elections next March to return Argentina to civilian rule. President Alejandro Lanusse, who is also commander of the army, has called the elections but negotiations with the Peronists and other parties are stalled over their charges that the military plans to "condition" the voting.

The guards at the marine base on the Atlantic coast killed 11 men and four women and wounded three men and one woman, aged 19 to 38. The 19 were in the stockade after surrendering to authorities following a suc-

Escape by Plane Foiled

FBI Kills 1, Seizes 2d Man In Bizarre N.Y. Bank Holdup

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP).—FBI agents shot and killed one alleged bank robber and captured his accomplice at Kennedy Airport today as the pair prepared to board a private jet plane for a flight out of the country. Seven hostages they had held for more than 11 hours were un-harm- ed. The gunmen, one a self-admitted homosexual demanding the release of his male "wife" from a mental ward, had robbed a Brooklyn branch of the Chase Manhattan Bank of $29,000 yesterday afternoon. They then held the employees as hostages when surprised by police before they could make a getaway.

An official in the bank's lower Manhattan headquarters had happened to call the manager and sensed something was wrong. He called police and the bank was surrounded within minutes. "It's a bizarre crime that stretched through the night, the gunmen negotiated with FBI agents and police, demanding a car to take them to the airport and then the use of a plane to flee the country. A two-engine Hansa jet was brought to the airport about 2:30 a.m.

Motorcade to Airport At 3:40 a.m. a limousine pulled up to the bank. The homosexual, John Wojtowicz, a rifle slung over his shoulder, searched the car and scanned the street for police snipers. He got into the car with his accomplice, the hostages and an FBI agent acting as driver. With one car in the lead and 10 following, they drove off for the airport, where they arrived at 4:45 a.m.

When the limousine reached the plane on a remote runway, an FBI official approached and talked to the men inside.

While he was talking, the agent driver pulled a gun and fired a shot, fatally wounding one man—identified as Donald Mat- terson, 18—in the chest. Woj- towicz surrendered.

FBI agents took from the limousine the $29,000 stolen from the bank, a 38-caliber snub-nosed pistol, a shotgun and a 30-06 rifle, the FBI said.

The 13-hour post-holdup hold-out at the bank had been marked by several bizarre incidents. Homosexual friends of Wojtowicz came to visit him and kissed him as he stood in the bank doorway while hundreds of onlookers cheered.

Wojtowicz asked that his homo- sexual "wife" whom he "married" last December, be brought to join the robbers in their flight. The mental patient was delivered to the bank and talked with Wojtowicz. Then he told police he was afraid of Wojtowicz and would not join him, saying, "He doesn't love me any more."

Wojtowicz, talking with a news- man by phone, warned repeatedly that he would shoot the hostages if police stormed the bank. "The Supreme Court will let me get away with this. There's no death penalty. It's ridiculous. I can shoot everyone here, then throw my gun down and walk out and they can't put me in the electric chair. You have to have a death penalty. Otherwise this can hap- pen every day."

At a preliminary arraignment before a U.S. magistrate on charges of bank robbery and ab- duction of hostages, Wojtowicz's court-appointed lawyer said Woj- towicz, 27, was a psychiatric out- patient from a hospital here. Wojtowicz was held on $250,000 bail pending a court hearing Aug. 31.

Plot Hatched in Her Apartment Moroccan Ex-Aide's Wife Accused

RABAT, Aug. 23 (UPI).—A woman entered the bizarre plot to kill King Hassan II today when unofficial sources disclosed it was hatched in her apartment only a few days before the attack last Wednesday.

Hassan told a news conference Monday that the idea to assassinate him and seize power began to germinate in the mind of De- fence Minister Mohammed Oufkir only four days after a first at- tempt to kill the king July 10, 1971.

The king has said that Gen. Oufkir committed suicide after being exposed by his two cap- tured co-plotters as the mastermind of the coup attempt.

The sources said today that while the king was in France on a three-week visit, Gen. Oufkir conceived the idea of shooting down the royal aircraft during its return home.

Gen. Oufkir and his two co- plotters, Lt. Col. Amerkrane and Commandant Kouera, discussed final details two days before the attack in the Casablanca apart- ment of the wife of a former min- ister now in jail. He was arrested along with several ministers on charges of corruption after the king launched reforms following the first attempted coup.

In other developments today, two newspapers published by the opposition group Istiqlal, L'Opinion and El Alam, were seized by police for the second consecutive day for publishing political ar- ticles on the affair. And the semi-official Moroccan News Agency announced that it had erred yesterday in reporting that Col. Hassan Lyoussi, discharged chief of the air force, had been given a post in the king's royal secretariat. Col. Lyoussi was re- placed Monday by Col. Mohammed Kabbaj, pilot of the king's nearly wrecked Boeing jetliner. He had told journalists he had been given the secretariat job.

Government officials said today the chief of the navy, Comdr. Dries Abadouri, who was fired yesterday, would be replaced temporarily by his deputy, Capt. Ahmed Aziz.

Oufkir Aides Arrested RABAT, Aug. 23 (Reuters).—

A number of people who were closely associated with Gen. Oufkir have been arrested, well-informed sources said today.

The arrests were carried out in Rabat and Casablanca and included Mohammed Bel Alem, former undersecretary of state at the Ministry of the Interior and a close aide of Gen. Oufkir, the sources said.

The Overwhelming American Consul

By Naomi Barry

NICE (H.T.)—Eleanor Hicks, the new American consul in Nice is 29, a woman and black. She is intelligent, vivacious and gracefully pretty. In the three weeks since she arrived, the Côte d'Azur has adopted the many-faceted Miss Hicks as the latest darling of local society. The area, which includes Monaco, is strong on protocol and parties.

The announcement of her appointment has brought 10 to 15 letters a day from young blacks seeking advice on how to achieve a similar life in the sun. A pouch stuffed with the letters is under her desk.

"Every time I have a free moment, I take out another one to answer personally."

In an office overlooking a spacious garden, the new deputy chief of bureau, who is 5 feet 5 and weighs 115 pounds, was wearing a dark green cotton dress with a modified Chinese collar and a pattern of Thai design at the cuffs. Her slender sandaled legs were bare. She looked like the lead in an imaginary movie entitled "The Decorative Diplomat."

In her last foreign post—as a political officer in the U.S. Embassy in Thailand—the surprising Miss Hicks sang for fun with an Australian rock group for three months, using the pseudonym of Georgia.

"I didn't take any money and the ambassador didn't mind. The group were friends of mine and their girl singer had become pregnant. Very few people knew I worked at the embassy during the day."

Burning the candle at both ends seems to offer few problems. "I can get along with very little sleep, although if I have less than four hours," she confessed, "I do get drowsy. But more than six hours and I feel sluggish."

Miss Hicks was born in Columbus, Ga. When she was 3, the family moved to Cincinnati. Here, she attended Walnut Hills High School and the University of Cincinnati before going on to the Graduate School of Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins University. A talent for languages which began with eight years of Latin study was probably the original impetus that led to a career in the foreign service, she feels.

She speaks fluent French, German and Thai and a bit of Italian picked up from an erstwhile fiancé. Her first job abroad was with the U.S. Information Service in Hamburg in 1966 during a summer student internship with the State Department.

"I loved the contacts with students, journalists, scientists. I am very grateful to my parents. Early in life, they gave me confidence, always repeating, 'Eleanor, anything you want to do, you can do.'"

Miss Hicks wants to do a lot and she does. "I studied piano but since I can't travel around with one, I taught myself guitar because I needed a musical outlet."

Since arriving in Nice, she has written the music for two songs, with lyrics in French. "Ca Arrivera" is nostalgic and a little sad but ends on a hopeful note. "Dans le Midi" is gay and bouncing.

She wishes she could record them herself but won't, as she is less anonymous in Nice than in Bangkok.

"My hobbies are endless. I'm interested in everything." She has sent a few stories to Alfred Hitchcock's Mystery Magazine, "but I've never quite made out. Still I like doing double twists. I've also written a couple of plays without success." She laughed. "So it is my struggle period. I say to myself, 'One day the world will turn on to me.'"

Eleanor Hicks, the new American consul in Nice.

Photography is another interest. A Pentax with telescopic lens was always ready by her side in the car, until the camera was stolen.

"Now I'm waiting for my movie camera and sound equipment to arrive. I'm not kidding. I have started to make a movie."

Several Hicks oil paintings have been hung in State Department art shows. She plays tennis well and chess with delight. "Bowling was our family sport. My parents are very young." Her mother, Annie P. Hicks, is 45 and works for the Internal Revenue Service. Her father, Carl Hicks, is 47 and an officer with the General Electric. "Now that I am in France, I want to learn to ski, sail and skin dive."

Although charming, gay, successful, popular—"I am fortunate not to have had better experiences"—the race question is inevitable. She grew up in a black neighborhood. At one time, her father was a vice-president in Cincinnati of the NAACP. However, the young Eleanor went to white or mixed schools and moved easily from one group to another.

"Sometimes I am attacked. 'Why aren't you back in America helping your people?'"

She obviously is battling for the right to be an individual.

"I don't want to react to people on a racial basis only. I value a person as a human being. I am not apologetic and I am not going to let anybody force his perspective on me, to control my life. I am doing what I do best—communicate. I enjoy working with a variety of people, not just propagandists. I am interested in the world, not just a city, a state or a country."

"I reject any philosophy or religion which makes you in or out, according to ethnic origins. I have done social work. But if I help a child, it is to help a child, regardless of his color."

"My parents never instilled in me racial bias. It is fine to instill pride. Distortion is another matter."

"I am disturbed by senseless wars. It also bothers me to see society fragmented and children taught to hate."

"Diplomacy is the possibility of discussion. But how can there be diplomacy if you can't even talk?"

There are critics. However, at the moment, the French are overwhelmed and amazed by Eleanor Hicks, a young black woman, a consul of the United States.

The Hazards of Platform Soles..

By Mary Ann Crenshaw

NEW YORK (NYT)—There's a new fashion malady afoot these days called the broken-bone syndrome. It's the summertime version of sking's broken-leg and this time it's a direct result of those still-like platform shoes that are testing all over the sidewalks of New York. Dr. Monroe Jacobs, president of the Podiatry Association of the State of New York, says that "the platform shoe is supremely dangerous."

He maintains that "the normal reflex pattern of walking is interrupted by the rigidity of such a thick sole and the shape of the platform, which is not conducive to the normal function of walking." He goes on to explain that these problems are compounded by the open back of many clog shoes which gives even greater instability to the foot.

Sudden Stops

As for those platform shoes with high, high heels (often towering to 4 inches), Dr. Jacobs points out that they are easily caught on a curb or a step. And the sudden stop is similar to that in a skiing accident.

The singer Kay Starr is a former clog-wearer who suffered just such a sudden stop when she slipped from a pair of beehive clogs and broke two bones in her foot. Miss Starr was in and out of a cast for approximately three months.

Dr. Horace DeCottis, a Manhattan podiatrist whose patients include many women in the fashion business, says that, since May, he has treated three fractures and four badly torn ligaments specifically related to these shoes.

As Dr. DeCottis explains it, "When a woman reaches the edge of a curb or a step, it is easier to fall from the platform shoe. If the platform is low and the foot only 1 inch off the ground there is a possibility of a 45-degree turn for the foot. With a 2-inch platform, this turn possibility can increase to 90 degrees."

Dr. DeCottis says he recently witnessed such an accident when a colleague's wife fell down a flight of steps and fractured her fifth metatarsal (the most common type of fracture in such cases, he says). She is on crutches. Meanwhile, Dr. DeCottis says his wife has given up her clogs as a safety precaution. After a tumble last March while wearing a pair of much-advertised clog-sold sandals, Gay Morris, sports-writer editor of Seventeen Magazine, spent eight weeks in a cast.

...Going Unheeded

By Angela Taylor

NEW YORK (NYT)—Foot doctors may be sending up warnings about the hazards of platform soles, but young women aren't listening. A substantial part of the under-30 generation is shuffling around town on thick soles and high heels, walking stiff-legged as if on stilts.

Most of the young women interviewed insisted that platform shoes are comfortable and that they haven't been tripping or turning ankles any more than they did in ordinary shoes. They liked the looks of their legs when they wore platforms with skirts and declared them a necessity with wide-legged pants.

Although a girl-watcher shook his head and wondered how the women didn't break their necks, it was obvious that fashion hazards can't dampen the generation that was tripping over its maxi-skirts a couple of years ago or raked freestyle in hot pants in winter.

"Sure I trip," said Shelley Wasserman, a bank secretary, who was trying on platforms at a Fifth Avenue shop. "But I'm a klutz. I trip over everything."

"To tell you the truth, they hurt until you get used to them," said Mona Nixon, a computer programmer whose open-backed platform pumps had been a gift brought from Paris. Miss Nixon added that she hadn't as much as turned an ankle as far as, though she was wearing stock-

Entertainment in New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (H.T.)—This is how The New York Times criticizes the new plays and movies:

Plays

"Much Ado About Nothing," the Shakespeare play, directed by A.J. Antoon, and presented by the New York Shakespeare Festival at the Delacorte Theater in Central Park, got a rave review from Mel Gussow. "Much Ado About Nothing" is a feast," Gussow writes, and "what makes it such an entertaining evening is not just Antoon's imaginative direction, but, of course, the play's intelligence and wit. In 'Much Ado' Shakespeare raises penitence and badinage to a high art." Antoon has transposed

Shakespeare's Messina to a small town in Middle America prior to World War I. "The gentlemen wear spats and carry pocket flasks," Gussow says. "The ladies smoke a shared cigarette, and clear the smoke away before the father of the house enters. Almost everyone is inhibited by social conventions—yet everyone is having a glorious time." The cast too is "splendid—particularly Sam Waterston as Benedick."

"Aesop's Fables," a rock musical based on Aesop's Fables, presented by the Performing Ensemble of the Chicago Free Theater, opened at the Mercer Theater where according to Howard Thompson "the acoustics snuffed out much of the fun." The drumming of the rock ensemble was "the loudest thumping I have heard since one voodoo night in the hills above Port-au-Prince, Haiti," Thompson reports. "What good is an evening of Aesop with about half of the fabulist's wisdom inaudible?" Nonetheless, "spirited, young cast has voices ranging from good to excellent," Thompson says, and the "real star" of the show evening shines when the dim sides—a "thoughtful, melodic, often striking" rock score by William Russo, who also directed and produced the play.

Movies

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers," directed by Gene Saks, screened by Neil Simon, adapted from his Broadway play, got a negative review from Roger Greenspun at Radio City Music Hall. "Although Neil Simon is widely thought to be a leader in contemporary kitch comedy ('The Shakespeare of our time,' according to Howard W. Koch, the film's producer), the movies that come out of his pen are almost never funny." "What good is an evening of 'Last of the Red Hot Lovers' that might satisfy for as long as it took to say the lines. But this movie makes strides for a dismal reason: that plays under the lines and doesn't even support their potential." As Barney Cashman, the lover, Alan Arkin does "everything wrong." Of Barney's three women (Gloria Taylor, Sally Kellerman, Paula Patton), Miss Taylor "probably suffers least."

"Bluebird," Edward Dmytryk's modern variation on the traditional tale, stars Richard Burton as Baron von Sopper, killer of six former wives and a prostitute (because he really loved his mother). Roger Greenspun says that he has "rarely seen a horror film so coyly aware of its own camp potential." Unfortunately, it is "better at being foolishly serious than at being slyly humorous, and its few good moments come before it admits that its spook lighting and its maybe 3,000 pounds of phony cobwebs are essentially a joke." A cast of international beauties—Vera-Ellen, Elizabeth Taylor, Katharine Delon, etc.—play the wives, while Burton, "seated at his organ, three Great Danes at his feet, a pet falcon perched high above his head," emceeds the brooding baron, according to Greenspun, as if

WHEN EVERYONE COPIES AN IDEA IT MEANS THE IDEA IS GOOD...

Twenty years ago we started the "Boutique" with its own original Van Cleef & Arpels creations, and all at "Boutique" prices.

At that time it was the first "Boutique" of the kind.

To-day it is no longer the only one, but this has not diminished its success.

We are now opening a larger and even more beautiful Boutique than before...with a very special collection created for this very special occasion.

THE IDEA WAS SO GOOD, WE HAVE BEEN FORCED TO EXPAND.
